

31 December 2007

Dear Friends and Family

As I sit here on New Years Eve, the year has gone by so quickly that it's difficult to believe it's 31 December 2007. I am taking some time out before going to a NYE party to share some of the many wonderful things that have happened in my business during the past year. You have always been so supportive of me so I knew you would enjoy hearing about my success. I have completed my Look Back Log and I am astounded how far I have come in such a short time.

I set out at the start of year with quite a few goals on the go, but the one thing I really wanted to focus on was my small business with the big heart.

Over the year I'm grateful that I have hit all the financial targets I made for the business and in some instances, have actually done better in many areas than I originally thought. I have spoken to over thirty different groups this year and all have responded really well to my message. My speaking ability has grown exponentially in doing so much public speaking that I am now being asked to speak in many different circumstances and different countries. The one I'm most glad about is that I'm regularly travelling to New Zealand to speak and do workshops and I'm so grateful to be able to spend a few days with Mum and my family each time I hop over the Tasman. It is fun to catch up with my little great nieces and nephews and spend some riotous times with them.

My submission to run a major Wellness Program was successful and every two months I have had a regular gig speaking to sold out groups about the benefits of finding balance and connecting with spirit and using more holistic practices to deal with stressful lives.

It was my goal to have the back office program, the second part of my business system, up and running in the first quarter of the New Year. I'm excited to say I got it finished with Belinda's help. Now I'm offering regular sold out teleclasses and weekend retreats teaching natural therapists how to grow their business, make more money and learning to have fun promoting their businesses. I really learnt the benefit of managing my time more carefully this year and was able to run many sold-out teleclasses and still maintain the balance I need to keep myself in control. The fun thing is that not only did the teleclasses take off but we were able to design retreat programs for therapists and have been doing the retreats in such cool and exciting places. Once I could only have imagined working in India and the East and now it has quickly become a reality. Occasionally I have to pinch my hand to remind myself that these fabulous things are happening to me. I used to sit and read all the wonderful courses all over the world but it was hard for me to imagine myself attending them, let alone actually presenting at them. How cool is that!!

So many therapists all over the world have joined my Full Practice Building program and I now have over 2,000 people on my database. Working with these amazing people all year has been such a blessing. When I look back to my times in Corporate and remember the dark assignments and people covering their butts and making my life a misery is well and truly over. I now only have positive, glowing people who are ready to go to the next level with their own business and are happy to do what it takes to get there. It is such a joy to see so many therapists actually making a living from their business and growing personally as they do it. Through them my goal of unshakeable peace for the planet is slowly coming to fruition.

I am so pleased I developed the Corporate Wellness Program too and it is great that I am working with some of those old corporate types but in a positive way now. It is also helping me financially and within the next 12 months I will be in a debt free position, not even a mortgage and I am so looking forward to that situation after struggling so much in the early days. I thank my corporate clients every time I get to fly business class instead of being down the blunt end of the plane. Always travelling in business class confirms my theory that the magic of travel comes together at the pointy end of the plane.

I am so grateful that I have been able to set up my Angel Flow Trust that has already helped a couple of natural therapists buy books for their study. I am so looking forward to 2008 when the trust will really kick in and I can fund my first student through full training who without financial help could not enrol for their studies and be able to help others. After I struggled so much it is amazing to now be able to give others a leg up in getting into natural therapies and the process of setting up their practice.

It is fabulous that I was able to go to the Kryon Retreat in Mt Shasta in the USA and again be surrounded with so much love and light. It has again raised me up to another level and being able to attend Robert's music module has inspired me to get back to playing music and I will have my first relaxation music CD out early next year. How exciting after having shut this creative side of me down for so many years. It just shows magic does happen when you fully open yourself up to the power of the Universe.

Travelling in the USA has been great. Thanks to those couple of lucrative corporate jobs I did early in the year I was able to have a big splurge and buy not one but two pairs of the hottest cowboy boots I've ever dreamed of. They are hand made for me and are a joy to wear and every time I look down at the hand tooling on them I'm reminded how awesome creative people are.

Having my office all set up properly and having IT support and my new personal assistant has made such a difference. I don't know how I did it all on my own for so many years. Every day I give thanks and gratitude for the wonderful people that support my business on a daily basis. It is great that all my websites have been upgraded and everything is working well, including the shopping cart which is bringing in a lot of passive revenue and paying for the extra people needed in the business now it is growing with ease and elegance. What a blast that we got on the front cover of that ritzy magazine for our innovative approach to running a small business. It was also great we got all that other cool free media exposure as well, it has sure helped with my profile and helped me get to help so many more people.

On one of my trips to the USA I was able to fit in the Licensee Retreat again at the end of this year. What a blast to spend so much quality time with my colleagues who are just so inspiring and fun to be around. I thank myself for the courage I had to lend the money to buy into the program, not just for the way it has helped me but the flow on effect to all the therapists I have helped through the program. It was rather special to be able to stay in the Crowne Plaza with all the other licensees this time and not be the poor relation in the rat hole a few blocks back. Was nice also to have a couple of days to rest from the jetlag at the Portofino with a sea view this time, the upgrade to a suite was kind a fun too. Being able to stay in these wonderful places really helps me network more and learn vicariously from the people who are so far ahead of me in so many ways. I'm also glad I did the fitness program in the early parts of the year and had no qualms getting in the Jacuzzi in my bathing suit with all the other beautiful people.

The Cute Hose is looking great after the renovations. How fabulous that I can't see sunlight through the floorboards any more and that the pink batts and full solar system and recycled waste water system is functioning well. To think the bank were close to selling the house out from under me and now much of the renovation work I wanted to do is complete.

None of this would have been possible if I hadn't got over all that fear and really learnt the meaning of trust. Every time I go into doubt now I have my picture of me with the elephant I was invited to visit at my first Kryon event and I am reminded how miracles can happen and how I am loved and that I am never alone. I've certainly placed myself in some "out there" positions this year and every time I used trust to its fullest capacity and never gave up believing in myself and my power to bring unshakeable peace, I have been rewarded with amazing experiences.

I think though that although 2007 has been amazing in terms of money and experiences, the most fabulous thing about the year was the new friendships I made and all the special people that came into my life. At the end of 2006 I was humbled at how much all my friends had rallied around to support and help me and now at the end of 2007 that has just multiplied and I am grateful for the love and support that surrounds me. All the trappings of success would not make me happy if I wasn't surrounded by so many remarkable people that I love and love me back. I feel truly blessed.

Happy New Year and I look forward to seeing you soon.
